Two Souls, Different Paths

We met at the right moment
but wanted different futures.

Our hearts spoke the same language,
yet our dreams chose opposite roads.
I wanted stability, something lasting.
You wanted movement, something endless.

Neither of us was wrong—
we were just not aligned.
Letting you go was not hatred,
it was understanding that love
cannot survive where growth is blocked.
Some connections are meant to teach,
not to stay.
And loving you taught me
that sometimes release
is the deepest form of respect.
